Flexible MBA

Why Choose the Flexible Master of Business Administration (Flex MBA)

Robinson’s nationally acclaimed Flex MBA program offers flexible course loads and class schedules at multiple convenient locations in the Atlanta metropolitan area. Individuals who aspire to become business leaders can earn an MBA at a pace that fits their busy lifestyle. Students have the flexibility to schedule a heavy or light course workload that best suits their schedule in any given semester.

Students who take a full load may graduate in two years, while others who enroll in fewer classes each semester will earn a degree in three to five years. Students may begin the program during fall, spring or summer semesters. They choose from 19 concentrations, multiple career paths and dual-degree options. Bloomberg Businessweek ranks Robinson’s MBA as 25th overall, and U.S. News & World Report places it 44th in the nation (and 28th among public universities).

Grades will be able to
• Make decisions across and in between functional boundaries to address complex issues
• Combine technology and culture within a global economic context to foster innovation
• Use business acumen, ethical awareness and leadership skills to create value in organizations

Overview

The Flex MBA program is designed for individuals with work experience who aspire to organizational or entrepreneurial leadership positions and who want to gain these skills in a flexible format. Students are exposed to all the functional areas of business and learn how to apply cross-functional knowledge to make decisions across and in between established disciplines. The program enhances general management abilities and provides an opportunity to gain expertise in a functional area.
